COOKING ON CAMPUS

TOUR THE KELLOGG HOUSE

In 1925, cereal magnate W.K. Kellogg purchased 377 acres in Pomona for his Arabian horse ranch and winter home. Because of Mr. Kellogg’s love of nature, the house was placed on a hill to take full advantage of the Pomona Valley panorama. Quick to recognize the value of hands-on “learning by doing,” he decided to donate his home and world famous Arabian horse ranch to an educational institution. The university as we know it today, is Cal Poly Pomona.

LUNCH AT THE KELLOGG RANCH RESTAURANT

You’ll dine at the School of Hotel and Restaurant Management’s own restaurant where students are “learning by doing.” The menu changes regularly as students try new recipes and learn new cooking techniques. It’s always a gourmet experience and service is top since grades are at stake!

THE FARM STORE AT KELLOGG RANCH

Using the latest technology on the Cal Poly Pomona fields, facilities, and in the greenhouses, students have the opportunity to learn everything about food production from start to finish. All of the products eventually end up for sale in the Farm Store where you’ll have an opportunity to purchase some of these fresh farm to table products.

THE EQUESTRIAN CENTER AT CAL POLY

See how the university uses a hands-on approach to learning as you watch the students working with these beautiful horses at the school’s state-of-the-art Equestrian Center.
